ABSTRACT

A system and method for automated testing of software products for use in a multi-platform and multi-product environment. The system comprises a series of databases in combination with a kernel of executable code for automatically running the testing process and displaying the test results. The system can be accessed via a web browser user interface.

M:\JImhof\IBM\25277\application final.wpd